

Northbridge University Examination Regulations

Category: Examinations | Version: 1.0 | Effective date: 1 August 2026

IMPORTANT: This is a completely fictional university policy created only for software development, demonstrations, testing, retrieval evaluation, and learning. It is not an official policy of any real institution.

Institution

Northbridge University is a fictional institution used only to provide realistic sample content for the Student Support Copilot project.

Purpose and Scope

This document explains the fictional examination rules used by Northbridge University for taught undergraduate and postgraduate modules. It covers registration, eligibility, timetables, absence, deferrals, repeat attempts, conduct, results, and appeals.

1. Examination Registration

Students are responsible for confirming that they are registered for each examination listed for their enrolled modules.

- Standard examination registration closes 15 calendar days before the start of the examination period.
- A student who notices a missing examination must contact the Examinations Office before the registration deadline.
- Late registration requests may be reviewed only where the student can show a system error or another documented administrative reason.

2. Examination Eligibility

Eligibility is determined from module registration and any published participation requirements.

- Students must be officially registered for the module.
- Where a module specifies mandatory laboratory, studio, placement, or attendance components, those requirements must be satisfied before the examination unless an approved exemption applies.
- Students with an unresolved fee or disciplinary hold may be referred to the relevant office before an examination admission decision is made.

3. Examination Timetable

The final timetable is published through the fictional student portal. Students must check the date, start time, location, and permitted materials.

- Students should report timetable clashes within 3 working days of publication.
- Personal travel plans are not normally grounds for changing an examination date.
- Students should arrive at least 20 minutes before the scheduled start time.

4. Absence Due to Illness or Emergency

A student who cannot attend an examination because of illness or a serious unexpected event may submit a mitigating-circumstances request.

- The request should be submitted within 5 working days after the missed examination.
- Medical claims must include a certificate or letter from an appropriate registered health professional stating the relevant period of incapacity.
- Evidence submitted late must include a written explanation for the delay.
- Submitting evidence does not automatically guarantee approval.

5. Deferred Examinations

If mitigating circumstances are approved, the student may be offered a deferred attempt at the next available assessment opportunity.

- An approved deferred attempt is normally treated as the same attempt number as the missed assessment.
- The exact date is confirmed by the Examinations Office after approval.
- Students must continue to monitor the student portal for the updated timetable.

6. Repeat and Resit Attempts

A student who fails an examination may be eligible for another attempt according to the module and programme regulations.

- The maximum number of assessment attempts for a taught module is normally three unless a programme-specific rule states otherwise.
- A resit mark may be capped at the module pass mark when the assessment is a repeat due to failure rather than an approved deferral.
- Students repeating a module may be required to complete both coursework and examination components again.

7. Examination Conduct and Misconduct

Students must comply with invigilator instructions and examination-room rules.

- Mobile phones, smart watches, unauthorized notes, and communication devices must be switched off and stored as instructed.
- Attempting to communicate with another candidate may be treated as suspected academic misconduct.
- Possession of unauthorized material can be investigated even when there is no evidence that the material was used.

8. Results and Queries

Provisional results are released through the fictional student portal after the relevant examination board has met.

- Students may request clarification about feedback or calculation errors through the relevant module team.
- Academic judgement cannot be challenged simply because a student disagrees with the mark awarded.
- A suspected administrative or procedural error should be raised promptly through the formal appeal process.

9. Examination Appeals

A formal academic appeal may be submitted when the student believes that a material procedural irregularity, undisclosed mitigating circumstance, or administrative error affected the assessment outcome.

- The normal appeal deadline is 10 working days after official publication of the relevant result.
- An appeal must identify the specific ground and include supporting evidence where applicable.
- An appeal cannot be based only on disagreement with academic judgement.
- The Appeals Office may reject incomplete submissions and invite the student to correct them within a stated period.

Quick Reference Questions

These examples restate the policy in common student language. They remain fictional and are included to support retrieval testing.

I was sick and missed my exam. What should I do?

Submit a mitigating-circumstances request within 5 working days after the missed examination and include appropriate medical evidence.

Can I change my exam because I booked a flight?

Personal travel plans are not normally accepted as a reason to change an examination date.

How long do I have to appeal an exam result?

The normal fictional appeal deadline is 10 working days after the official publication of the relevant result.

What happens if I fail an exam?

You may be eligible for a resit or repeat attempt, subject to the module and programme attempt limits.
